ENGH 201 001 4 CredHrs CRN 40158	Reading and Writing Crime Fiction • GenEd-Breadth/Humanities • ProgCLA-CEA and Au Pair Helps students develop their skills as both creative writers and critical readers. Provides an introduction to classics of the genre of crime fiction from its origins in the late nineteenth century to its twentieth and twenty-first century iterations in literature, film, and television. Students will have the opportunity to learn how writers from Agatha Christie to Henning Mankell have shaped conventions of the genre while also subverting these conventions through innovations in plot, characterization and thematic concerns. Students will then be asked to try their hand at	Jacob Soule	01:00 PM - 04:30 PM TR Jul 01, 2024 - Aug 09, 2024	OL	15	7	8	0		• Dept: - • Major: - • Class: - • Level: - • Degree: - • Program: - • College: - • Attribute: - • Cohort: -	• Pre-reqs: • Co-Reqs: • Cross Listed: • Approval Type: • Part of Term: Summer 2nd Session: 6 Weeks • Final Exam: • Session: O-Online • Section Fee:

Examines various works of fiction and their adaptations into screenplays and, eventually, into films and television shows. Primarily looks at short works which have been adapted for the screen but will also look at excerpts from longer works including plays, novels, and graphic novels. Students are asked to create original works of fiction and adapt them into short scripts and screenplays. Investigates what goes into creating an adaptation through practice, not just theory. Introduces basic elements of storytelling and fiction writing, as well as some basics of screenwriting and visual representation including, but not limited to, scene pacing, dialogue, and directorial comments. Builds skills through a short series of informal assignments to adapt existing fictional works into original scripts. | Henry Margenau | 01:00 PM - 04:30 PM TR May 20, 2024 - Jun 28, 2024 | OL | 15 | 9 | 6 | 0 | | • Dept: -

The Shakespeare Theatre of N.J. Apprenticeship/Internship
A full-time apprenticeship or internship with the Shakespeare Theatre of New Jersey. The specifics of assignments are determined by the department and the individual student. Apprentices, students with little experience in acting, receive training in scene study, voice and movement, and broad exposure to all aspects of theatre production. The internship program is designed for more advanced students interested in developing their knowledge and skills in a specific, non-acting area, such as set, costume design, directing, stage management, box office, etc. Students develop a journal that records their day-to-day experiences, a detailed written summary of the entire apprenticeship/internship, and a creative project. Exact completion date and nature of the creative project are determined in consultation with the Shakespeare Theatre and the Drew faculty adviser.

WRTG 120 001 4 CredHrs CRN 40164	Academic Writing How can you use your unique voice as a writer? How can you enter into cultural conversations and express your ideas clearly and persuasively? Students will have the opportunity to practice the skills to succeed in college writing, including annotation, close reading, drafting, and revision. Students will encounter the many forms in which writing is a conversation, examining academic and pop culture texts including graphic novels, short stories, theatrical plays, and documentaries. Students will be able to practice writing in multiple genres including reflection, literary analysis, and research based writing.
