This program marks the 80th anniversary of Kristallnacht through photos and film excerpts taken at the time as well as testimony by two first hand-witnesses:
Peter Lederman and Erwin Ganz, both small boys in November 1938.

Kristallnacht, also known as “the night of broken glass” and the Reich Pogrom occurred on November 9-10, 1938. During these two days, the Nazis unleashed a wave of pogroms against Germany’s Jews, wreaking incredible damage on Jewish communities across “greater Germany” which by 1938 included Austria and parts of Czechoslovakia. Over 1000 synagogues were destroyed along with Jewish stores and homes. Over 100 Jews were murdered; thousands were imprisoned in concentration camps.
