An Inventory

Creators: Drew University Newark Project

Title: The Newark Project

Dates: 1994-2006.

Abstract: Research reports, student papers, interview transcripts, and interview recordings from the work of Drew theological students tracking religious expression among LGBTQ people in Newark. Collection also contains the administrative files, financial documents, publications and reports of the Newark project organization and Karen Brown's personal papers.

Extent: 43 boxes, 30 linear ft, including photographs, audiotapes, videotapes, floppy discs, CDs, and a slide projector.

Language: English

Repository: Drew University Library, Madison NJ

Historical Note:

The Newark Project began in 1993, founded by Art Pressley, Karen McCarthy Brown, Ada Maria Isasi-Diaz and Otto Maduro. The project was initially funded by grants by The Prudential Foundation and the Jessie Ball DuPont fund. The project would later receive funding from The Ford Foundation in 1997.

The project began as a breakout group from the course, "Religion and the Social Process" and in 1992 and 1993 the focus of the Newark Project was on studying homelessness and social services. Students were paired with a homeless "mentor" and studied their experience with social services. In 1994, the focus of the project shifted to studying HIV/AIDS. Each student in the "Religion and the Social Process" group was assigned a mentor who was living with HIV/AIDS and documented their experiences through interviews and reports. Another associated course, "Methods in the Study of Urban Life and Religion" covers ethnographic research and the resultant essays, photographs, interviews, video and audio have been collected in the Newark Project Archive. Two other courses "AIDS and Culture" taught by Lee Hancock and "Lived Religion in Urban Settings" taught by J. Terry Todd also were associated with the Newark Project.

The goal of the project since 1994 was to further field-based learning through documenting the personal stories of LGBTQ people in Newark through oral history, with particular focus on queer religious expression. Brown was especially interested in considering the spiritual energy and religious syncretism she found present among LGBTQ people in Newark, countering the narrative of the LGBTQ community being anti-religion, non-spiritual or post-Christian. Another goal of the program was to provide M.Div students with hands-on training for urban ministry. Brown argued that the insular nature of the Theological School prevented students from acquiring real life experience with homelessness, poverty, and marginalized populations.

Scope and Content Note: The Newark Project collection consists primarily of research reports and interviews conducted by Drew University Theological School students involved in the project. The collection also includes administrative files and correspondence, audio and visual media, and Karen McCarthy Brown's papers. Brown's papers have been included with this collection as they relate to her work at Drew University as a professor and administrator of the Newark Project.

Arrangement: The records are arranged into eight series, five of which have been further arranged into subseries.

Series I. Field Work

Series Description and Arrangement: The fieldwork series consists of interviews and research reports conducted by Drew theological students participating in the Newark Project. Many of the reports focus on the culture in individual churches and communities. The research reports should be viewed as student research papers and understood as secondary sources which synthesize interviews and bibliographical research. In some cases, the writer includes extensive text from the interviews they conducted, in other cases simply a few lines. The reports may also be graded and include instructor comments. Research reports and interviews are organized by date and by the author or interviewer's name, followed by the name of the interview subject.

Series IV: Research.

Series Description and Arrangement: This series is divided into two subseries: Subseries A: The Pluralism Project and Subseries B: Articles. The Pluralism Project was completed between 1998-2000 by students to map the religious institutions of Newark. It is comprised of church leadership and congregation demographic information in 2000 as well as material related to the history of the church. Materials in both subseries are arranged alphabetically.

Series VII: Media.

Series Description and Arrangement. This series has been divided by media file type into five subseries: Subseries A: Photographs. Subseries B: Slides. Subseries C. Video Tapes. Subseries D. Audiotapes. E. Discs – CDs and Floppy discs.

Subseries A. Photographs is arranged by date, following original order. Much of the material had been arranged by the Newark Project administrators in archival photo sleeves and held in binders, and organized by date and researcher. Material has been moved from binders to folders, but the original index and titles have been maintained. Photographs in many folders are preceded by a cover sheet containing the researcher's name, date, location and description of photos. Box 2 of photographs contains prints mounted on 28 x 36 poster board with accompanying captions on the back.

Subseries B. Slides is arranged by date and researcher, following original order. Material had been arranged by the Newark Project administrators in binders and indexed. Slides are preceded by a cover sheet indicating the researcher's name, date, slide numbers, type, and description. In some cases, the slides are captioned and captions are listed on the index. Slides are listed in this finding aid by the description provided on these cover sheets.

Subseries C. Videotapes is arranged in alphabetical order by title, following original arrangement as indicated on "List of Videos" by Larry Buskey from April 3, 2001. This series primarily consists of video of the Project FIRE drag balls and interviews. Some videos have been transcribed and the transcriptions can be found in the interviews subseries (Series I. Fieldwork, Subseries B. Interviews.) Some video titles that appear on the "List of Videos" are not included in the collection.

Subseries D. Audiotapes. Transcriptions of some of the audiotapes are available in the interview series (See Series I. Field Work, Subseries B. Interviews), or may correspond to material in the research reports (See Series I. Field Work, Subseries A: Research Reports). The audiotapes in the Newark Project are listed by the researcher's name, followed by the interview subject's name, and the date, where identified. Transcriptions are not available for all audiotapes.

Audiotape material from 1973-1981 is from Karen Brown's Vodou research predating the Newark Project. Audiotapes are listed with identifying information from the labels.

Subseries E: Discs contains material on floppy discs and CD-ROMs. Material is arranged by date, following original order. The discs primarily contain back-up or master files of material available printed in the fieldwork series.

Series VIII: Karen Brown Papers

Series Description and Arrangement: The Karen Brown Papers series consists of Brown's work during her time as a professor at Drew University. The series is subdivided into subseries A: Drew University Teaching Files, B: Correspondence, and C: Notes. Subseries A: Drew University Teaching Files consists of graded dissertations, student papers, and teaching notes from Karen Brown. Material is arranged alphabetically by student name.

Subseries B: This subseries consists of Karen Brown's correspondence, primarily related to her academic work. Letters directly linked to the Newark project are filed under the Newark project correspondence, although the themes and authors will overlap between these series. This series is organized by the author's last name.

Subseries C: Notes consists of Karen Brown's meeting notes, paper drafts, paper presentations, annotations on papers and assorted brochures and articles. Materials are arranged alphabetically by title. Original folder titles maintained where present.
